ATTACK IN SENATE ON TWO CABINET MEMBERS

MELLON AND WEST FACE FIRE OF CRITICISM

NAVAL CRUISER BILL, HOWEVER IS STILL LYING ON THE SHELF

REPUBLICAN MAJORITY IS EXPECTED TO BEAT OFF BOTH ATTACKS

Washington, Jan. 21.—(UP)—The nomination of Roy O. West, prominent Chicago attorney selected by President Coolidge to fill out a term in the administration as secretary of interior, was confirmed today by the senate after three days of secret debate.

The United Press learned the vote was about 54 or 53 to 27.

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Jan. 21.—(UP)—With the naval cruiser bill still on the shelf, the senate today again became the forum for attack upon two cabinet members, Secretary of Treasury Mellon and Secretary of Interior West.

The republican majority expected to beat off both attacks, affirming Mellon's view that only a moderate increase in prohibition enforcement appropriations is advisable at this time and confirming West's nomination. The majority was adamant in the face of the new split in the Anti-Saloon League of Mellon's opposition to the proposed $25,000,000 prohibition increase and it apparently had sufficient votes to confirm West at the vote scheduled under a unanimous consent agreement for 2:30 P.M. Arrangements were made to meet in executive session at noon to resume the West debate now entering its third day. West friends claim to have lost no votes over the week-end and were confident the case of the opposition had suffered in view of their assurances that the Chicago attorney would not be a candidate for renomination after March 4 in the Hoover cabinet.

The fight against Mellon centered upon the supposition that he will be renominated. His job was not at stake in the prohibition issue but his opponents were laying the ground for what is anticipated as a determined stand to be made against his confirmation if he is renominated. The senate will go into open session to thresh out the Mellon matter as soon as the West vote is taken.

Advocates of the shelved naval bill are becoming increasingly alarmed at the extensive debate which is jeopardizing their measure.

Chairman Hale of the naval affairs committee in charge of the bill is seeking to work out some agreement for setting a time to vote on the bill. So far he has been unsuccessful.

The house today resumed consideration of routine business where it left off Friday. It is well up with its business and not involved in any of the sensational controversies which are occupying the senate.

STORY OF KING SOLOMON'S FAVORITE WIFE IS FOUND

London, Jan. 21.—(UP)—The story of the love of King Solomon's favorite wife which led her to drink poison intended for him is told in a manuscript found by excavators in a new and magnificent tomb in the temple mount of Jerusalem.

The manuscript was believed written by Solomon himself and was beside the richly clad mummy of Queen Motimaris, which lay in a golden coffin, the Daily Mail's Cairo correspondent reported today.

Motimaris was Solomon's favorite among his thousand wives, the manuscript related, and she was standing near when the king lifted a cup of wine to his lips. The wine had been poisoned by Amento, Motimaris' father, in an attempt to kill the king. She snatched it from his hand, drank it and died with Solomon's arms around her.

The newly discovered tomb bears out the manuscript's assertion of Motimaris' favor with Solomon. It surpassed the tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen in splendor. The queen's hair was filled with precious stones, while her crown was set with sapphires, emeralds and pearls.

Biggest Police Cleanup in Chicago Made Today

EARTHQUAKE IN DEADLY TOLL AT CUMANA

Caracas, Venezuela, Jan. 21.—(UP)—The definite number of dead and injured from last Thursday's earthquake at Cumana had not been determined today, but reports continued to indicate approximately 200 were killed and more than 1,000 injured.

Reports published here by the newspaper El Universal said 28 bodies taken from the ruins of Cumana had been identified.

Survivors, their homes destroyed and many of their loved ones killed by the ten minutes of trembling earth, were evacuating the ancient city for nearby towns, reports said.

Caracas, Venezuela, Jan. 21.—(UP)—Fresh earth tremors have added to the terror of the destitute population of Cumana, which was leveled by an earthquake last Friday.

The Bishop of Cumana sent a message over the restored telegraph line today saying the seismic movements were continuing, although with diminishing intensity.

NEW THEORY OF LIFE IS HELD BY SCIENTIST

DR. AUSTIN H. CLARK CLAIMS NO CONNECTION BETWEEN MAN AND MONKEY ORIGIN

UPHOLDS BIBLICAL IDEA OF CREATION WITH RADICAL THEORY OF EVOLUTION

Washington, Jan. 21.—(UP)—There is no connection between the origin of man and monkey, Dr. Austin H. Clark, Smithsonian Institution scientist, told the United Press today in explaining his new theory of life just announced in the quarterly review of biology.

Dr. Clark, noted throughout the world for his biological research, upholds the Biblical idea of creation of man and combines it with a radical theory of evolution.

Man was an accident, appearing on earth before the dawn of history substantially the same as he is today, the biologist asserted.

Dr. Clark' theory—a startling one for a man of science—is expected to create a furor similar to that brought about when Darwin published his ideas on evolution.

He takes the carefully gathered Darwinian evidence on the descent of man from an ape-like creature and unceremoniously discards it as unscientific.

"Man appeared in the Pliocene age, just preceding the ice age. He appeared suddenly and in substantially the same form as he is in today. There is not the slightest evidence of his existence before that time," he said.

"He appeared able to walk, able to talk and able to defend himself.

"There are no such things as missing links. Fossil skulls, which have been dug up and advanced as missing links showing connection between man and monkey, have all been shown as misinterpretations."

The theory of evolution is illustrated by the diagram of a tree with primeval unicellular creatures representing the roots and anthropoid ape and man the highest branches.

In Dr. Clark's theory, he discards the tree and takes that of a multi-faceted diamond figure with each face representing a distinct group of life forms, all joined by connecting lines.

All life tends to produce certain forms dissimilar to itself, the scientist said, and when these forms happen to be created under a favorable environment, they serve as a new type of plant or animal.

From some quadruped, or maybe biped, man actually sprang, Dr. Clark offers as a theory, not as an abnormality but in one broad leap to existence as man is known today. The environment was right and man lived. Dr. Clark believes that man may have been born and died many times until his creation happened under the right environment.

Dr. Clark supports his theory by a mass of evidence, highly technical, gathered from a life time of study and research of plant life and animals in many parts of the world.

Both Branches of Minnesota Legislature Are to Reconvene at State Capitol Tonight

IMPORTANT QUESTIONS TO BE TAKEN UP

MINNESOTA UNIVERSITY APPROPRIATIONS, REFORESTATION, MINE TAX CUTS

HIGHWAY PROGRAM, INQUIRY INTO CROWDED STATE INSTITUTIONS

St. Paul, Jan. 21.—(UP)—Representatives O. H. Dahl of Lyle and M. J. Rohne of London, announced here today that they will introduce a bill in the house of representatives tonight calling for a 4-cent tax on gasoline. The bill, which will have 22 authors, according to Rep. Dahl, would provide for a consistent highway improvement program without the proposed $20,000,000 bond issue or the proposed county reimbursement bonds.

By HECTOR PERRIER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

St. Paul, Jan. 21.—Both branches of the Minnesota legislature will reconvene at the state capitol tonight, following the second week-end recess, to begin consideration on a half dozen important questions.

Minnesota University appropriations, reforestation, mine tax reductions, motor laws, highway program and a possible inquiry into crowded conditions at state institutions were among the measures and questions scheduled to be thrown into the legislative hopper.

Appropriations committees of the two houses and the state department of administration and finance are anxious to reach an agreement on the university budget appropriations so that they will not be caught in the hectic last week.

Reforestation committees in both the house and senate will take up the recommendations of the interim committee for sweeping forestry changes and will consider 12 bills already submitted. At the same time the tax delinquency problems of Beltrami and Lake of the Woods counties may be discussed.

Mine tax reduction proposals are expected to cause a rift between northern and southern legislators. Northern senators and representatives have contended that the taxes are prohibitive and if not reduced may mean the death of the mining industry.

The highway program, particularly the proposal for a $20,000,000 highway bond issue, is almost certain to cause a break among the membership of both houses. Governor Theodore Christianson has voiced

MAJOR LAIHUANG TO UNDERTAKE LONG FLIGHT

New Orleans, La., Jan. 21.—(UP)—Major Tien Laihuang, president of the Chinese Aeronautical association, will undertake a 9,000-mile flight from California to China late this year, he announced here today.

2 PERSONS ARE KILLED IN HOTEL FIRE, MINNEAPOLIS

10 INJURED WHEN NATIONAL HOTEL OF MILL CITY IS DESTROYED

SCORES OF GUESTS ESCAPE BY LADDERS FROM BLAZING BUILDING

Minneapolis, Jan. 21.—(UP)—At least two persons were killed and 10 were injured in a fire that destroyed the National hotel here early today. Scores of guests escaped by ladders from the blazing five-story building. Firemen, who completed a preliminary search of the ruins found the body of an unidentified man and that of a man registered as John J. Jones, Williston, N. D.

Among the more seriously injured were Olaf N. Lundberg, 58, a Chicago salesman, and Fred Krowl, address unknown.

Owners of the building—one of the oldest landmarks of the city—refused to estimate the loss. Cause was undetermined.

Among the other seriously were: Dorothy Knowlton, 24, guest. Mrs. W. F. Scripture, resident. Miss Johnnie Stanley, resident. Miss Babe Devore, guest. Murray A. Sefton, 29, fireman. Harry B. Day, resident. Herman Kettles, resident. Mrs. Bessie Stanley, 49, resident.

his opposition to the bond issue and a great many legislators have sided with him.

The possibility of an inquiry into conditions at state institutions arose last week during committee room discussions of the budget appropriations. Senators A. J. Rockne Zumbrota, and J. D. Sullivan, St. Cloud, may lead the fight for increased appropriations for institutions, especially the reformatory at St. Cloud.

Senator C. A. Hauser, St. Paul, indicated that at the session tonight he would introduce a bill which would require automobile owners to secure liability and property damage insurance, together with driving permits for the members of their families before they could secure automobile licenses.

REPORT THAT PRESIDENT LITTLE MAY RESIGN

RUMOR IS PREVALENT IN ANN ARBOR, UNIVERSITY TOWN

STATED HE HAS FAILED TO GAIN FULL SUPPORT OF STUDENTS AND ALUMNI

Ann Arbor, Mich., Jan. 21.—(UP)—The resignation of Dr. Clarence Cook Little, president of the University of Michigan, will be presented to the board of regents tonight, it was reported today.

The report of the president's intention was based on newspaper announcements and rumor. Neither Dr. Little nor the board of regents would deny the report, however.

It was reported that Dr. Little's resignation, should it be offered tonight, would be accepted by the board of regents.

Since Dr. Little became University of Michigan's sixth president in 1925, coming from Cloy College, Maine, he has been the central figure in considerable controversy over the university.

He was outspoken in his views on several questions of controversial nature, attracting much attention by his position as president of the Birth Control League and an attack upon the alleged "black list" of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Dr. Little failed to gain the full support of students and alumni. His two-team varsity football idea did not find great favor, and his barring of automobiles aroused a storm of protest.

However, no intimation of any differences of opinion between the president and the board of regents have become public. In all public policies, including a ten year huge building program which would have prepared for the university's centennial celebration, the board upheld the president.

PENNSYLVANIA ELECTROCUTES SLAYER OF 24

Rockview Penitentiary, Bellefonte, Pa., Jan. 21.—(UP)—The state of Pennsylvania electrocuted today its most notorious criminal—Paul Jawarski, who boasted he had killed two dozen men.

Aroused from sleep at 5:30 a. m. by prison officials and served with breakfast, Jawarski was taken into the death chamber at 7 a. m. and a few minutes later his criminal career was ended in the electric chair.

Jawarski was executed for the slaying of L. L. Gump, payroll guard who was fatally shot during a $48,000 holdup of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal company at Molleraner, Pa., December 23, 1925.

Another murderer, Calvin E. Jones, of Bucks county, followed Jawarski to the electric chair by a few minutes. He was pronounced dead at 7:14 p. m.

TREACHEROUS SWAMPS CLING TO THEIR SECRET

4 YOUNG MEN OF WILMINGTON, N. C., LOST ON HUNTING TRIP

200 MEN ENLISTED IN SEARCH, COAST GUARD CUTTER JOINS

Wilmington, N. C., Jan. 21.—(UP)—The treacherous swamps of the Cape Fear river in Brunswick county today steadfastly held its secret—the secret of the fate of four young men who set out Friday upon a hunting trip and have become lost.

The party was made up of three brothers and a friend—Elliot and Randolph Huggins, of Wilmington and Fred Ingler and Jessie Huggins, of New York.

When they left the brothers easily assured their mother they would not get lost. Night came and the boys did not return. They did not return Saturday. Rescue parties were organized and a search begun more than 200 men were enlisted in the search.

Members of the crew of the United States coast guard cutter Modoc joined forces with the land party, and Captain Frederick Kreuzberg, a visiting German war ace, volunteered the use of his plane.

Search is continuing for the young men, but as the hours pass into days and no word comes of their whereabouts hopes are fading and fear is arising that they have perished.

MARSHAL FOCH FEELING BETTER

Paris, Jan. 21.—(UP)—Marshal Ferdinand Foch sat up today for a few minutes and received his first visitor since his illness became critical. ### 3,500 PEOPLE OF CHICAGO'S UNDERWORLD

SOME IN RAGS, SOME IN TAGS, SOME IN TUXEDOS AND EVENING GOWNS

POLICE SMASH THROUGH CABARETS, BEER FLATS AND SPEAKEASIES

Chicago, Jan. 21.—(UP)—Thirty-five hundred inhabitants of the Chicago underworld, some in rags and some in tags and some in tuxedos and evening gowns, were in jail today after the biggest police cleanup in the city's history.

Snatching through cabarets, beer flats and speakeasies of the south and north sides and invading hotels and theaters, the entire Chicago police force worked double time over the week-end in an attempt to halt the wave of lawlessness which had resulted in 162 robberies and four murders in the last week.

Gangland today was deserted. Professional bondsmen and attorneys were insulted. Police merely smiled.

The entire city, long accustomed to promised cleanups which some how failed to materialize, hardly could believe that Police Commissioner William Russell actually had arrested 3,500 men and women, whose fingerprints, photographs and records adorn the archives of police files.

Those who didn't believe had only to make a short tour of the city. Forty police stations were jammed and overflowing with scowling prisoners.

The raids began Saturday night, halted temporarily Sunday morning, then were resumed Sunday night and lasted until dawn today. Virtually every member of Chicago's police department participated. All men worked double shifts; all leaves and holidays were cancelled that Commissioner Russell might have sufficient men to cover the city.

Police patrols and detective squad cars were as thick as taxicabs in the loop. Theatre patrons left their seats to witness the roundups. Several did not return. Street corners were jammed by spectators and not infrequently curious groups were separated by police in search of their quarry.

Theaters, exclusive night clubs and restaurants were invaded. Patrons in full dress at the theater or in the various loop night clubs were tapped on the shoulder and escorted to patrol wagons. Outside the loop, police raided beer flats, saloons, gambling houses and dives of all sorts.

In the lobby of a loop theater a burglar and a bootlegger, dressed in evening clothes, were taken into custody as they presented their tickets. Two youthful bandits were arrested as they were holding up a patrolman. Shabbily dressed "hip" bootleggers were picked up on the streets and found their places in the patrol wagons with their more prosperous appearing brothers.

Even the higher-ups, protected by bodyguards, were caught in the city-wide roundup. Among the prominent guests behind the bars today were "West Side" Frankie Pope, Ralph and Frank Guglio, Sampp Kaplan, Emil Cook, Nathan "Bunk" Goldberg, Joe Glaser and four lieutenants of "Polack Joe" Saltis.

Bondsmen and attorneys seeking to free their clients, were unable to locate them amid the confusion at the stations. The few bondsmen who did penetrate as far as the sergeant's desk were informed that no prisoners would be released until after the "showup" today.

Deputy Commissioner John Stege will be master of ceremonies at the "showup" at which detectives will attempt to identify the prisoners with various crimes on record.

Gilbert Bids Goodbye on Way to Germany

The party was made up of three brothers and a friend—Elliot and Randolph Huggins, of Wilmington and Fred Ingler and Jessie Huggins, of New York.

When they left the brothers easily assured their mother they would not get lost. Night came and the boys did not return. They did not return Saturday. Rescue parties were organized and a search begun more than 200 men were enlisted in the search.

Members of the crew of the United States coast guard cutter Modoc joined forces with the land party, and Captain Frederick Kreuzberg, a visiting German war ace, volunteered the use of his plane.

Search is continuing for the young men, but as the hours pass into days and no word comes of their whereabouts hopes are fading and fear is arising that they have perished.

3,500 PEOPLE OF CHICAGO'S UNDERWORLD

SOME IN RAGS, SOME IN TAGS, SOME IN TUXEDOS AND EVENING GOWNS

POLICE SMASH THROUGH CABARETS, BEER FLATS AND SPEAKEASIES

Chicago, Jan. 21.—(UP)—Thirty-five hundred inhabitants of the Chicago underworld, some in rags and some in tags and some in tuxedos and evening gowns, were in jail today after the biggest police cleanup in the city's history.

Smashing through cabarets, beer flats and speakeasies of the south and north sides and invading hotels and theaters, the entire Chicago police force worked double time over the week-end in an attempt to halt the wave of lawlessness which had resulted in 102 robberies and four murders in the last week.

Gangland today was deserted. Professional bondsmen and attorneys were insulted. Police merely smiled. The entire city, long accustomed to promised cleanups which some how failed to materialize, hardly could believe that Police Commissioner William Russell actually had arrested 3,500 men and women, whose fingerprints, photographs and records adorn the archives of police files.

Those who didn't believe had only to make a short tour of the city. Forty police stations were jammed and overflowing with scowling prisoners.

The raids began Saturday night, halted temporarily Sunday morning, then were resumed Sunday night and lasted until dawn today. Virtually every member of Chicago's police department participated. All men worked double shifts; all leaves and holidays were cancelled that Commissioner Russell might have sufficient men to cover the city.

Police patrols and detective squad cars were as thick as taxicabs in the loop. Theatre patrons left their seats to witness the roundups. Several did not return. Street corners were jammed by spectators and not infrequently curious groups were separated by police in search of their quarry.

Theaters, exclusive night clubs and restaurants were invaded. Patrons in full dress at the theater or in the various loop night clubs were tapped on the shoulder and escorted to patrol wagons. Outside the loop, police raided beer flats, saloons, gambling houses and dives of all sorts.

In the lobby of a loop theater a burglar and a bootlegger, dressed in evening clothes, were taken into custody as they presented their tickets. Two youthful bandits were arrested as they were holding up a patrolman. Shabbily dressed "hip" bootleggers were picked up on the streets and found their places in the patrol wagons with their more prosperous appearing brothers.

Even the higher-ups, protected by bodyguards, were caught in the city-wide roundup. Among the prominent guests behind the bars today were "West Side" Frankie Pope, Ralph and Frank Guglio, Sampp Kaplan, Emil Cook, Nathan "Bunk" Goldberg, Joe Glaser and four lieutenants of "Polack Joe" Saltis.

Bondsmen and attorneys seeking to free their clients, were unable to locate them amid the confusion at the stations. The few bondsmen who did penetrate as far as the sergeant's desk were informed that no prisoners would be released until after the "showup" today.

Deputy Commissioner John Stege will be master of ceremonies at the "showup" at which detectives will attempt to identify the prisoners with various crimes on record.

The association president said half of the requested $50,000 would be spent in attracting home-seekers to the state and the remainder on the tourist program.

AUTOMOBILE, AIRPLANE IN A COLLISION

CALIFORNIA FAMILY TELL OF HEADON CRASH OF CAR AND PLANE

AVIATOR TRIES TO MAKE FOR- CED LANDING IN A SNOWSTORM

San Bernardino, Calif., Jan. 21.—(UP)—The day of the automobile-airplane collision has arrived.

Badly frightened, but nevertheless unscratched eight members of the family of Frank Tice of Baldwin Park, recounted today how an airplane dropping unexpectedly out of the sky met their automobile in a head-on collision three miles east of here.

The unusual spectacle occurred on the National Old trails yesterday when Robert Crooks, aviation instructor, attempted to make a forced landing in a snowstorm.

Crooks made a fast descent and brought the plane down several feet above the roadway, unaware of the presence of an automobile containing Tice, wife, four small children and their grandfather.

Realizing that a crash was inevitable, Crooks allowed his craft to strike the roadway heavily in an effort to bounce the plane clear over the automobile. The attempt failed and the propeller struck the radiator of the automobile. The impact tilted the plane sufficiently to allow the wing to clear the top of the sedan.

CALIFORNIA FAMILY TELL OF HEADON CRASH OF CAR AND PLANE

AVIATOR TRIES TO MAKE FORC- ED LANDING IN A SNOWSTORM

San Bernardino, Calif., Jan. 21.—(UP)—The day of the automobile-airplane collision has arrived.

Badly frightened, but nevertheless unscratched eight members of the family of Frank Tice of Baldwin Park, recounted today how an airplane dropping unexpectedly out of the sky met their automobile in a head-on collision three miles east of here.

The unusual spectacle occurred on the National Old trails yesterday when Robert Crooks, aviation instructor, attempted to make a forced landing in a snowstorm.

Crooks made a fast descent and brought the plane down several feet above the roadway, unaware of the presence of an automobile containing Tice, wife, four small children and their grandfather.

Realizing that a crash was inevitable, Crooks allowed his craft to strike the roadway heavily in an effort to bounce the plane clear over the automobile. The attempt failed and the propeller struck the radiator of the automobile. The impact tilted the plane sufficiently to allow the wing to clear the top of the sedan.

DOLLAR LINER GROUNDS ON BAHAMA SHOALS

83 PASSENGERS OF PRESIDENT GARFIELD TO BE LANDED AT NASSAU

NAVAL VESSELS RUSH TO ASSIST- ANCE OF THE DISABLED STEAMER

New York, Jan. 21.—(UP)—Eighty-three passengers of the grounded Dollar liner President Garfield were prepared early today to be landed at Nassau by the Munson liner Pan America, which took them from the sea in lifeboats.

The 154 members of the crew, mostly Chinese, waited aboard the President Garfield for the arrival of naval vessels rushing to the assistance of the disabled steamer.

The President Garfield, lying in the Little Bahama Shoals, 75 miles east of the Fort Pierce on the Florida coast, was reported to be in no danger. The extent of damage done to the bottom of the liner is as yet undetermined.

Last Thursday the President Garfield put out from this port with a passenger list of 83 bound on a cruise around the world. Havana was to have been the first port of call. At 7:25 A. M. yesterday a distress message was sent out which attracted the attention of the Pan American steamship, which was permitted to effect her rescue.

According to word received here, the President Garfield had run by a light buoy marking the shoals and when Capt. T. P. Quinn realized this he attempted to turn and retrace the course but was firmly grounded fore and aft.

Capt. Rose, of the Pan America, rushing under forced draught to the stranded steamer, advised Capt. Quinn to put passengers and their baggage in life boats to be transferred to the Pan America. Shortly after 4 P. M. the Pan America sighted the President Garfield and the lifeboats put out with the passengers, their baggage and mail.

Captain Quinn later advised the United Press that all passengers and mail had safely been transferred to the S. S. Pan America.

From Key West, Fla., came advice that the coast guard cutters Suaknee and Tallaposa had left to assist the disabled ship and should be alongside early this morning.

New York, Jan. 21.—(UP)—The Dollar liner President Garfield was so little damaged by going on the Nassau shoals off Florida that she will be refloated tomorrow and continue her around the world cruise, officials of the steamship company announced today.

The tug Warbler already is standing by the President Garfield and has lines attached to her, the advices said. Other tugs are expected tomorrow. They will aid in moving her into deeper water.

The President Garfield was undamaged by going on the shoals, Dollar officials said. Pumps were used to remove some water ballast, the statement said. The stern anchor will hold, officials said.

The liner carried about 7,000 tons of freight, much of which was the crated motor cars.

STATE BANKS

FLOURISHING

DEC. 31, 1928, DECIDEDLY BETTER THAN OCTOBER 29, 1928

St. Paul, Jan. 21.—(UP)—Minnesota state banks on Dec. 31, 1928, showed decided improved conditions as compared to Oct. 29, 1928. A. J. Veigel, state banking commissioner announced here today.

Comparative figures from the two bank calls revealed an increase of $1,056,363.85 in deposits; an increase of $551,203.62 in surplus, undivided profits and reserve accounts while bills payable and rediscounts were reduced $941,622.17.

Deposits totalled $409,453,461 in the 801 state banks, five savings banks and 16 trust companies, Veigel said, while the cash reserve was $49,713,193 or double the amount required by law.

"One of the most important points of the call, showing the improvement of bank conditions," Veigel said, "is the gradual reduction of the 'other real estate items'."

Other real estate, usually called frozen assets, was reduced $512,808 to $9,368,600. This account in the state banks was $15,645,959 on Nov. 2, 1925.

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 21.—(UP)—George Harsh, condemned "thrill slayer" sat in his Fulton Tower cell today under sentence of death in the electric chair March 15, as his attorneys prepared plans for a new trial.

The former Oglethorpe university student received no callers Sunday and still apparently was indifferent to his fate.

Harsh, son of a wealthy Milwaukee family was convicted Saturday of the murder of Willard H. Smith, shot during an attempted holdup last October. He confessed and implicated his friend Richard Gallogly, of Atlanta, whose trial has been set for Jan. 29.

At the trial 10 physicians and alienists testified that Harsh was a constitutional psychopath. The defense contended the former Oglethorpe university student was a victim of irresistible impulses and unable to distinguish between right and wrong.

The jury deliberated but 18 minutes before deciding not to recommend mercy.

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

STUDYING OUR PROSPERITY

THERE is one aspect of American life which interests travelers from abroad even more than prohibition, and which they seem to discuss more often in interviews they give when they return home. It is our continuing prosperity. How long can it last? What social and economic problems arise from it? These the reporters of European newspapers and the returned travelers debate frequently at great length, reaching few conclusions.

One of the soundest set of observations in this line which has come to my eye in the foreign press is an interview which The Liverpool Post and Mercury had with Hugh Lewis, general manager of the Liverpool and London and Globe Insurance Company, Ltd. He comes often to this country in pursuance of his business interests, and his comment is generally friendly. But what puzzles him—and there are plenty of Americans in the same fix—is what is to be the outcome of instalment buying, of building construction in the face of vacant apartments and stores, or rivalry among motor makers to turn out new models for a people which already owns most of the motor-cars in the world, of the mechanization of labor. These he considers "the problems of success"; he does not doubt that our national abilities will solve them, but is not yet clear how.

Mr. Lewis, as were many Englishmen, was much impressed with the general good-will for the British Commonwealth of Nations which he found here, and particularly struck with the attitude of press and public toward the illness of King George. "All this knowledge," says he, "makes me impatient when I read the light-headed efforts of gabbling trouble-mongers to make mischief between two great peoples who, if ever they were to quarrel seriously, would bring all that both count worth while in present-day civilization tumbling about our ears." To this, sensible people heartily say: "Amen." But viewing economic trends, and quoting a few pessimists and a few optimists, Mr. Lewis finally concluded:

Cautious people have time and again been routed in the unprecedented happenings in this amazing country, so that all such Jeremiahs are just now apt to be subdued. It often seems to me that the typical English attitude to affairs is at the outset "a healthy skepticism," whereas that of the American is to be at once ready "to take a chance." Perhaps if both tendencies met half way the truth would be more nearly approached.

We cut down costs of production; we remorselessly scrap old equipment for new; and yet "internal competition," says this observer, "is growing more acute and tending to defeat the economy measures." And always Mr. Lewis reverts to instalment buying. It is not difficult to see that he finds danger in that, but is willing to be persuaded that Americans have sufficient genius to make them immune. In short, this friendly English onlooker sees many things to be disturbed about in our headlong prosperity, and if we were any other nation he would be inclined to be much concerned. With full appreciation of his sagacious opinion, American economists none the less are not wholly convinced that such suggestions as Mr. Lewis's "Stop-Look-Listen" are, as he is inclined to believe, "the mere reactions of old-fashioned folk."—New York Times.

A CANADIAN ANTI-AMERICAN PRESS

THE United States Supreme Court's decision limiting Chicago's right to divert water from the Great Lakes is regarded by St. Lawrence waterway proponents as an important victory for their cause. They point out that lowering the Great Lakes by drainage into Chicago's sewage canal, with consequent damage to navigation, has aroused Canadian hostility and hence has hampered international agreement to build the seaway.

No doubt to a certain extent this is a sound point of view. Reaction to the decision is generally favorable in Canada. Yet the bitterest critics of water diversion among Canadian newspapers have been those of the East having little interest in navigation this side of Montreal. These newspapers have used the Chicago water diversion issue to arouse Canadian distrust of the United States and hence if possible to help defeat international accord on the St. Lawrence waterway. The Montreal Gazette and the Toronto Mail and Empire have been particularly active at this game.

Now that the Supreme court has decided against Chicago, these newspapers simply transfer their agitation to other subjects. Concerning the decision itself, the Mail and Empire says nothing of consequence and the Gazette remarks that there is doubt "whether Canadian interests are much safer, if any, by reason of the Supreme court judgment than they were before." These newspapers now concentrate upon finding flaws in the Kellogg treaty and in denouncing America's supposed impudence in seeking revision of the anti-smuggling treaty.

The people of this country will be reluctant to think that there is an anti-American press in Canada. Selfish and unrestrained opposition to neighborly understandings which would result in construction of the St. Lawrence waterway is, however, carrying a section of the Canadian press in that direction.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

A NORTH DAKOTA VIEW

CANADA is awake now to the importance of the proposed St. Lawrence deep waterway. United States has been told in no uncertain language by the president-elect that the deep waterway to the sea is necessary. He has let it be known that he favored the St. Lawrence. Thus it looks as though we might within a reasonable length of time be loading ocean-going vessels at Duluth and other Great Lakes points. If so, when the work is completed, it will mean an added 11 cents per hundred for every bushel of grain that is shipped to Europe. Eleven cents per hundred weight, which will revert to the actual farmer who raises the farm product.

We heard a lot during the late campaign about farm relief, but nothing suggested in the way to help agriculture would mean more than the deep waterway. Legislated farm relief may or may not help. There is always an element of uncertainty, but the deep waterway is an absolute certainty.

It will add approximately 10 per cent to the prices received by the farmer, to every hundred pounds he raises. It will not be a part time increase, but a steady saving month after month and year after year.

The ocean lane to all parts of the world from Duluth may not cure all our ills but it offers a sensible solution of a part of our ills and we hope President-elect Hoover will make the deep waterway one of the very first orders of business after he takes the chair.—Wahpeton Farmer-Globe.

More Dangerous

Colds Attacking Weakened System
Pave Way For Pneumonia and
Other Serious Diseases

AVOID TOO MUCH DOSING

One of the peculiarities of influenza is that its toxins leave the digestive system upset. Constant "dosing" for the colds which come so frequently after a flu attack still further disturbs the digestion and lessens the appetite, just when the body needs nourishment more than ever. And yet these colds are so apt to develop into bronchitis or pneumonia that they must be treated at the first sign.

Vicks VapoRub is especially valuable here, because it is applied externally and so can be used freely with no risk of upsetting a delicate system. Just rub it on the throat and chest at bedtime.

Vicks acts 2 ways at once to check the cold and avoid serious complications: (1) through the skin like a poultice, and (2) direct to the air-passages by means of its medicated vapors, released by the body-heat.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

TO Irene Robeline it was a painful duty to sit up at the vigil of Lilith Holden. The story of Lilith's capture of handsome Guinn Holden, young minister of the Texas town, as told by Mattie Anson, village gossip, was like stabs with a knife. Lilith was the prettiest girl in town. Her coquetry didn't stop at the church, but almost before she knew it she had married Holden. A year later, with the birth of a child, Lilith died. Irene's heart aches for Holden, who attempts to care for the infant with the help of a colored servant. The minister comes to her for aid, never realizing Irene's passion for him. Will Lundy, town doctor, in love with Irene, is equally ignorant of her secret. Even Mattie Anson who, hints that it is time for Irene to marry Lundy, is deceived. But when Lundy asserts his love Irene rejects him and determines the more to win Holden.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER VIII.

MATTIE flopped down on Irene's porch one day. "Before long all the girls in the church will be setting their caps for the preacher."

Irene was startled, but endeavored not to show it. "Do you think so?"

"Yep. They'll all look their souls over and decide they need cleaning. You'll see 'em tripping to the pastor's study to ask spiritual advice. Spiritual advice, eat's foot!"

Irene laughed, to conceal her discomfiture. "I wonder."

"I don't wonder. I know. I've seen too many things and too many springs and too many girls go past not to know the signs. These eyes of mine are forty-seven years old, and not a bit nearsighted, so I don't miss much that goes on around me. I know girls. Some of 'em feel religion is just 'round the corner from love. But I don't reckon the parson'll be paying 'em much heed."

"No?"

"Well, you can't always tell. Widowers are chancy. Once a man's been halter broke, castrating him is easier next time. And a man never learns by his first mistake. Seems like he's sorter prone to make the identical blunder that he made before. If he was tormented by a red-headed hellcat of a wife the first time, he's drawn to pick up red hair again. Habit's a awful thing."

"That's true," was the sober reply.

"Course, no other girl's going to chase him down just like Lilith did, but there are other ways of doing it." Mattie yawned elaborately. "I saw Abby Whitaker with a look in her eyes Sunday when he was preaching. Abby thinks 'cause her pa is chairman of the board of deacons, she's got the preacher in her pocket. And Sallie Lou Gates has had two new hats this month. Wears 'em to church and sits on the front seat, so's he can't miss seeing 'em."

"You ought to be a doctor of yourself," laughed Irene.

"You wait and see. Mattie's wart wiggled at her knowing way."

Was Mattie trying to give her advice? Did she guess her secret? Was she hinting that she use her head and not let him slip away from her again? Her face burned with shame.

Mattie was sensible and shrewd, and had the sharpest eyes in town. If she could tell her the truth, and ask her advice? But no, that was the last thing she could do. She couldn't tell anybody. Pride clamped her lips.

"Wait and see."

How lucky for her that Will Lundy was so conspicuously in love with her! He could throw dust in everybody's eyes, even Mattie's. But that was cruel, to use him for her own protection without regard for his feelings. But love made you cruel. Love gave you clear eyes, too, to see what others suffered. She could laugh with Will Lundy over his love for her, but deep in her heart she knew how sincere it was. He could joke about it, because he believed she'd surely come to care for him in time—just as she held the wild hope that sooner or later Guinn Holden would love her. . . . Could she love Will, or anybody else, if she knew for certain that Guinn would never love her? No, not even then. . . .

She hunted up articles on the care and training of infants, in order to be ready for any impromptu question he might ask. . . . If he knew he could always find help when he turned to her, maybe . . . And she did so want to help him! Her mind churned itself into sleep at night bothered with thoughts of a helpless man trying to do for a baby and a church and a house. Men weren't efficient like women. They always had things to do for them, and so it was pathetic to think of a man "on his own." Comical too, Guinn's fingers fumbling with the buttons of the baby's coat when he brought her over for inspection. . . . His foolish questions about what to do for her. The way he let that tyrant baby boss him.

"How do you unspoil a baby?" he asked one day.

"That's hard."

"She won't go to sleep unless I rock her and sing to her, and I can't sing. She wakes up in the middle of the night and howls to have the light turned on and me to sing."

"I hear you doing it," she commented, with an unsympathetic smile.

"How'm I going to keep from it?" He flung out his hands in despair.

"She ought to be put in a room by herself and not be played with at night. You'll ruin her nerves."

"But she cries. And that's bad for her nerves, isn't it?"

"She cries because she's learned that's the way to make you step lively and do what she wants you to. Silly!"

She indulged herself in that one word. It meant a lot more, but he didn't seem to notice.

Lilith's autocratic spirit and her father's yielding nature brought many complications into the parsonage and kept the church in a ferment.

Mrs. Hotchkiss, the president of the Ladies' Aid, finally bribed Aunt Viny to wheel the baby buggy on a route some distance from the church on Sunday morning, and get back to the parsonage before the final prayer, so the preacher wouldn't know. "Cost me five dollars, but it's worth it," she reported grimly to her hand. "I can take it out of my tithe money."

That was after Lilith had fallen and bumped her nose and created such an outcry that her howls had broken up the church service. Even the deacons made comments about spoiled children on that occasion.

"That man'll have a conniption fit if he finds out," Mattie said. "You know he's ordered her to stay close by."

"That baby rules the preacher, but I don't want to see her boss the church if I can help it," retorted the president. "All she has to do is whimper and he leaps to do what she wants."

"If I was him, I'd be a man or a mouse, one or the other," averred Mattie.

Yes, Lilith ruled him by her soft weakness that was fast becoming a stubborn power. . . . But was it only the baby that he bowed before—or the other Lilith born again in her? Did he see just a little baby that he adored, or did he see her as his love for Lilith embodied, alive, deathless, crowding everything else out of his heart? "Love can be a lasting thing," Will Lundy had said. (To Be Continued.)

STUDYING OUR PROSPERITY

THERE is one aspect of American life which interests travelers from abroad even more than prohibition, and which they seem to discuss more often in interviews they give when they return home. It is our continuing prosperity. How long can it last? What social and economic problems arise from it? These the reporters of European newspapers and the returned travelers debate frequently at great length, reaching few conclusions.

One of the soundest set of observations in this line which has come to our eye in the foreign press is an interview which The Liverpool Post and Mercury had with Hugh Lewis, general manager of the Liverpool and London and Globe Insurance Company, Ltd. He comes often to this country in pursuance of his business interests, and his comment is generally friendly. But what puzzles him—and there are plenty of Americans in the same fix—is what is to be the outcome of instalment buying, of building construction in the face of vacant apartments and stores, or rivalry among motor makers to turn out new models for a people which already owns most of the motor-cars in the world, of the mechanization of labor. These he considers "the problems of success"; he does not doubt that our national abilities will solve them, but is not yet clear how.

Mr. Lewis, as were many Englishmen, was much impressed with the general good-will for the British Commonwealth of Nations which he found here, and particularly struck with the attitude of press and public toward the illness of King George. "All this knowledge," says he, "makes me impatient when I read the light-headed efforts of gabbling trouble-mongers to make mischief between two great peoples who, if ever they were to quarrel seriously, would bring all that both count worth while in present-day civilization tumbling about our ears." To this, sensible people heartily say: "Amen." But viewing economic trends, and quoting a few pessimists and a few optimists, Mr. Lewis finally concluded:

Cautious people have time and again been routed in the unprecedented happenings in this amazing country, so that all such Jeremiahs are just now apt to be subdued. It often seems to me that the typical English attitude to affairs is at the outset "a healthy skepticism," whereas that of the American is to be at once ready "to take a chance." Perhaps if both tendencies met half way the truth would be more nearly approached.

We cut down costs of production; we remorselessly scrap old equipment for new; and yet "internal competition," says this observer, "is growing more acute and tending to defeat the economy measures." And always Mr. Lewis reverts to instalment buying. It is not difficult to see that he finds danger in that, but is willing to be persuaded that Americans have sufficient genius to make them immune. In short, this friendly English onlooker sees many things to be disturbed about in our headlong prosperity, and if we were any other nation he would be inclined to be much concerned. With full appreciation of his sagacious opinion, American economists none the less are not wholly convinced that such suggestions as Mr. Lewis's "Stop-Look-Listen" are, as he is inclined to believe, "the mere reactions of old-fashioned folk."—New York Times.

A CANADIAN ANTI-AMERICAN PRESS

THE United States Supreme Court's decision limiting Chicago's right to divert water from the Great Lakes is regarded by St. Lawrence waterway proponents as an important victory for their cause. They point out that lowering the Great Lakes by drainage into Chicago's sewage canal, with consequent damage to navigation, has aroused Canadian hostility and hence has hampered international agreement to build the seaway.

No doubt to a certain extent this is a sound point of view. Reaction to the decision is generally favorable in Canada. Yet the bitterest critics of water diversion among Canadian newspapers have been those of the East having little interest in navigation this side of Montreal. These newspapers have used the Chicago water diversion issue to arouse Canadian distrust of the United States and hence if possible to help defeat international accord on the St. Lawrence waterway. The Montreal Gazette and the Toronto Mail and Empire have been particularly active at this game.

Now that the Supreme court has decided against Chicago, these newspapers simply transfer their agitation to other subjects. Concerning the decision itself, the Mail and Empire says nothing of consequence and the Gazette remarks that there is doubt "whether Canadian interests are much safer, if any, by reason of the Supreme court judgment than they were before." These newspapers now concentrate upon finding flaws in the Kellogg treaty and in denouncing America's supposed impudence in seeking revision of the anti-smuggling treaty.

The people of this country will be reluctant to think that there is an anti-American press in Canada. Selfish and unrestrained opposition to neighborly understandings which would result in construction of the St. Lawrence waterway is, however, carrying a section of the Canadian press in that direction.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

A NORTH DAKOTA VIEW

CANADA is awake now to the importance of the proposed St. Lawrence deep waterway. United States has been told in no uncertain language by the president-elect that the deep waterway to the sea is necessary. He has let it be known that he favored the St. Lawrence. Thus it looks as though we might within a reasonable length of time be loading ocean-going vessels at Duluth and other Great Lakes points. If so, when the work is completed, it will mean an added 11 cents per hundred for every bushel of grain that is shipped to Europe. Eleven cents per hundred weight, which will revert to the actual farmer who raises the farm product.

We heard a lot during the late campaign about farm relief, but nothing suggested in the way to help agriculture would mean more than the deep waterway. Legislated farm relief may or may not help. There is always an element of uncertainty, but the deep waterway is an absolute certainty.

It will add approximately 10 per cent to the prices received by the farmer, to every hundred pounds he raises. It will not be a part time increase, but a steady saving month after month and year after year.

The ocean lane to all parts of the world from Duluth may not cure all our ills but it offers a sensible solution of a part of our ills and we hope President-elect Hoover will make the deep waterway one of the very first orders of business after he takes the chair.

Charles Farrell and Dolores Del Rio in "The Red Dance" Fox Picture

"I love the role of Tasia. It's the finest characterization I ever have had."

Dolores Del Rio speaking, and if the exotic star-felt that way about her part in "The Red Dance," now showing at the Lyceum it is easy to understand why she gave such an inspired portrayal.

Likewise it can truly be said that Miss Del Rio never had a more handsome leading man than Charles Farrell of "7th Heaven" fame who co-stars in this big special production.

After-Effects More Dangerous Than Flu Itself

Colds Attacking Weakened System Pave Way For Pneumonia and Other Serious Diseases

AVOID TOO MUCH DOSING

One of the peculiarities of influenza is that its toxins leave the digestive system upset. Constant "dosing" for the colds which come so frequently after a flu attack still further disturbs the digestion and lessens the appetite, just when the body needs nourishment more than ever.

And yet these colds are so apt to develop into bronchitis or pneumonia that they must be treated at the first sign.

Vicks VapoRub is especially valuable here, because it is applied externally and so can be used freely with no risk of upsetting a delicate system. Just rub it on the throat and chest at bedtime.

Vicks acts 2 ways at once to check the cold and avoid serious complications: (1) through the skin like a poultice, and (2) direct to the air-passages by means of its medicated vapors, released by the body-heat.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

TO Irene Robeline it was a painful duty to sit up at the vigil of Lilith Holden. The story of Lilith's capture of handsome Guinn Holden, young minister of the Texas town, as told by Mattie Anson, village gossip, was like stabs with a knife. Lilith was the prettiest girl in town. Her coquetry didn't stop at the church, but almost before she knew it she had married Holden. A year later, with the birth of a child, Lilith died. Irene's heart aches for Holden, who attempts to care for the infant with the help of a colored servant. The minister comes to her for aid, never realizing Irene's passion for him. Will Lundy, town doctor, in love with Irene, is equally ignorant of her secret. Even Mattie Anson who, hints that it is time for Irene to marry Lundy, is deceived. But when Lundy asserts his love Irene rejects him and determines the more to win Holden.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER VIII.

MATTIE flopped down on Irene's porch one day. "Before long all the girls in the church will be setting their caps for the preacher."

Irene was startled, but endeavored not to show it. "Do you think so?"

"Yep. They'll all look their souls over and decide they need cleaning. You'll see 'em tripping to the pastor's study to ask spiritual advice. Spiritual advice, cat's foot!"

Irene laughed to conceal her discomfiture. "I wonder."

"I don't wonder. I know. I've seen too many things and too many springs and too many girls go past not to know the signs. These eyes of mine are forty-seven years old, and not a bit nearsighted, so I don't miss much that goes on around me. I know girls. Some of 'em feel religion is just 'round the corner from love. But I don't reckon the parson'll be paying 'em much heed."

"No?"

"Well, you can't always tell. Widowers are chancy. Once a man's been halter broke, catching him is easier next time. And a man never learns by his first mistake. Seems like he's sorter prone to make the identical blunder that he made before. If he was tormented by a red-headed hellcat of a wife the first time, he's drawn to pick up red hair again. Habit's a awful thing."

"That's true," was the sober reply.

"Course, no other girl's going to chase him down just like Lilith did, but there are other ways of doing it." Mattie yawned elaborately. "I saw Abby Whitaker with a look in her eyes Sunday when he was preaching. Abby thinks 'cause her pa is chairman of the board of deacons, she's got the preacher in her pocket. And Sallie Lou Gates has had two new hats this month. Wears 'em to church and sits on the front seat, so's he can't miss seeing 'em."

"ish questions about what to do for her. The way he let that tyrant baby boss him."

"How do you unspoil a baby?" he asked one day.

"That's hard."

"She won't go to sleep unless I rock her and sing to her, and I can't sing. She wakes up in the middle of the night and howls to have the light turned on and me to sing."

"I hear you doing it," she commented, with an unsympathetic smile.

"How'm I going to keep from it?" He flung out his hands in despair.

"She ought to be put in a room by herself and not be played with at night. You'll ruin her nerves."

"But she cries. And that's bad for her nerves, isn't it?"

"She cries because she's learned that's the way to make you step lively and do what she wants you to. Silly!"

She indulged herself in that one word. It meant a lot more, but he didn't seem to notice.

Lilith's autocratic spirit and her father's yielding nature brought many complications into the parsonage and kept the church in a ferment.

Mrs. Hotchkiss, the president of the Ladies' Aid, finally bribed Aunt Viny to wheel the baby buggy on a route some distance from the church on Sunday morning, and get back to the parsonage before the final prayer, so the preacher wouldn't know.

"Cost me five dollars, but it's worth it," she reported grimly to her band. "I can take it out of my tithe money."

That was after Lilith had fallen and bumped her nose and created such an outcry that her howls had broken up the church service. Even the deacons made comments about spoiled children on that occasion.

"That man'll have a conniption fit if he finds out," Mattie said. "You know he's ordered her to stay close by."

"That baby rules the preacher, but I don't want to see her boss the church if I can help it," retorted the president. "All she has to do is whimper and he leaps to do what she wants."

"If I was him, I'd be a man or a mouse, one or the other," averred Mattie.

Yes, Lilith ruled him by her soft weakness that was fast becoming a stubborn power. . . . But was it only the baby that he bowed before—or the other Lilith born again in her? Did he see just a little baby that he adored, or did he see her as his love for Lilith embodied, alive, deathless, crowding everything else out of his heart? "Love can be a lasting thing," Will Lundy had said.

Fr. James Hogan officiating. Requiem and high mass will be observed at the service. Interment will be at Evergreen cemetery.

PLATTE LAKE

Milas Steffan who since last summer has been working in Milwaukee, Wis., was home for a few weeks vacation. He returned again New Year's day, taking three other men from here and Brainerd along.

The pastor and family of the Platte Lake church were the recipients of a very useful Christmas gift from the ladies aid and the young people's society, also many other gifts from individual members.

The last meeting of the ladies aid was held at the home of Mrs. E. F. Gross of Esdon. A pleasant afternoon was enjoyed by all present. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. F. Steffan. At this meeting the annual report will be given, and election of officers take place. Meeting on last Wednesday of the month, January 30.

The annual meeting of the Immanuel congregation was held on New Year's day. Sixteen voting members were in attendance. The treasurer, Geo. Henningson, rendered the annual report, which report was very favorable and encouraging, with progress in all departments. The result of election was as follows: deacon, (to fill vacancy caused by a member having moved away) Simca Frederiksen; deacon for three years, Frank Steffan, Jr.; treasurer, Geo. Henningson (re-elected); secretary, Rev. Heidtke; ushers, Edwin Magnusson and Harry Boeder.

We are glad to hear that Mrs. Edlund has recovered again sufficiently to be at home. We hope that the recommended rest will restore her to former strength and health.

Rev. Heidtke has been asked to serve the mission congregation at Hillman, 21 miles southeast from his home. It is the wish of the mission to have services every other Sunday during the winter months, and if possible every Sunday during the summer, with a forenoon service once a month, which latter wish was granted them by the Immanuel church here at the annual meeting.

Mrs. F. Steffan was in the Cities to visit with her daughter, Mrs. Plushow whose husband is in the hospital at the present time.

Various sicknesses have been making the rounds in this neighborhood since Christmas, measles, flu and chickenpox, and several schools have been closed on account of same.

Carry Brost, youngest sister of Mrs. Boeder made a surprise visit at her sister's place here; the surprise consisting in the fact that she no longer was Carry Brost but Mrs. Hanson and as evidence introduced Mr. Hanson as her husband. In short—the newlyweds were up here on their honeymoon trip. They will make their home at Emery, Wis. They were married January 3.

There will be no services at the Platte Lake church as the pastor will be in Hillman.

The Waditaka and Ohitaya Camp Fires held a joint candy sale at the last Lincoln Parent Teachers association. The Waditaka group made $5.80 and the Ohitaya $5.50. The Camp Fires greatly appreciate the patronage of the Parent Teachers.

The girls of the Oawensa Camp Fire met in the guardian's room Monday, January 14. We tied packages which consisted of a box, a soft article, and a fragile article on which all of us received an honor bead.

Wednesday evening at 4:10 we all worked for the following honors: 10 harmful bugs, 5 trees, and 6 Indian legends. Almost all the girls received the honors. After that we practiced folk dances.

CONDUCT SEARCH FOR IRONTON MAN

"Pat" Johnson Was Last Seen Tuesday on His Way to Work

Authorities at Ironton were perplexed today over the disappearance of "Pat" Johnson, resident there, who was last seen Tuesday morning, January 15, on his way to work.

Mr. Johnson, who is 21 years old, was employed by the Inland Steel Co. He had started from his home with his lunch kit, presumably for work, about 8 A. M. Tuesday. Since then no word has been received from him. His present whereabouts is unknown to his parents or the range police.

A rumor current today in the range towns to the effect that the body of the missing man had been found in a snow bank, the victim of foul play, was discredited by range officials who stated they had investigated the source of information and placed no credence in it.

The aid of the county sheriff's department and police departments throughout the state was sought today in an effort to locate Mr. Johnson.

The Whittier Parent Teacher association will sponsor a "1929 Jamboree," February 1. Suggestive of the longed for "good old summer time" are some of the promised attractions.

"There'll be fish ponds, clowns, plenty of them—and a German band," promises Dr. A. K. Cohen, promoter in chief.

Originality marks the special features, full details of which have not yet been made public, and there are whispers from the culinary department that are mouth-watering in effect.

This money making project can be heartily supported by all ages and creeds for the purpose in view—that of supplying playground equipment, etc., is one that should commend itself to everyone. Northside dwellers, especially, should be interested, and those from other school precincts will no doubt remember that cooperation in such affairs is the secret of their own success.

Winter Feed for Geese

Here's an interesting question which was answered in this week's issue of The Farmer of St. Paul:

Mrs. E. J. Crow Wing Co., Minn., writes: "In your article 'ducks or geese' November 3, you state that goose eggs are sometimes infertile because the geese are not properly fed during the winter. How should they be fed? I had a pair of geese two years and never had an egg hatch."

Geese like all water fowl should be fed wet mash or in other words soft feeds, green feed and you mustn't forget the grit or mineral matter. A good ration would be something like this: 4 parts corn meal, 3 parts bran, 1 part red dog feed or cheap flour, 1 part finely ground oats and 5 per cent of meat scraps, 1 per cent of fine sand and about 1/2 per cent of fine table salt.

In the winter time it would be well to add about one-fourth of the bulk of finely cut alfalfa or clover hay.

If alfalfa, clover hay or lawn clippings are not available, you can use cooked vegetables or even raw vegetables if finely cut. A little sludge now and then might be used. I should feed this night and morning. At noon their appetite might be appeased by throwing out a very little whole corn, about one pint to 8 or 10 geese.

I should be afraid that this pair you had did not mate. I should look them over carefully and if the chances are the goose is to blame I should get a new goose, that is, if she is over fat or clumsy. On the other hand, if the gander is over fat or clumsy I should get a new gander. It is best to make any changes in the flock in the fall as geese are quite sensitive and it takes them a long time to get acquainted and a long time to mate.

SECOND WEEK OF CHICAGO'S MILK WAR IN EVIDENCE

Chicago, Jan. 21.—(UP)—The second week of Chicago's milk war began today, with the strike of dairy farmers gaining momentum. Thus far no actual shortage has been felt by Chicago milk consumers.

More than 100,000 pounds of milk enroute to Chicago was destroyed or contaminated by kerosene over the week-end by bands of striking farmers, and several instances of "strike-breakers" being badly beaten were reported.

President-elect Herbert Hoover has been informed of the situation by the strikers. They seek an increase from $2.50 a hundred pounds to $2.85.

URGED TO ENFORCE EXISTING CRIMINAL LAWS OF STATE

St. Paul, Jan. 21.—(UP)—Fifty representatives of the Minnesota County Attorneys' Association today were urged to enforce existing criminal laws rather than devote valuable time in fostering legislation which may or may not receive favorable action from the state legislature.

Chester Wilson, assistant attorney general, gave his approval to the legislation program sponsored by the county attorneys at their annual convention here but he stressed enforcement of already existing laws.

The assistant attorney general recommended closer co-operation between county attorneys and local enforcement officers. Fr. James Hogan officiating. Requiem and high mass will be observed at the service. Interment will be at Evergreen cemetery.

PLATTE LAKE

Milas Steffan who since last summer has been working in Milwaukee, Wis., was home for a few weeks vacation. He returned again New Year's day, taking three other men from here and Brainerd along.

The pastor and family of the Platte Lake church were the recipients of a very useful Christmas gift from the ladies aid and the young people's society, also many other gifts from individual members.

The last meeting of the ladies aid was held at the home of Mrs. E. F. Gross of Esdon. A pleasant afternoon was enjoyed by all present. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. F. Steffan. At this meeting the annual report will be given, and election of officers take place. Meeting on last Wednesday of the month, January 30.

The annual meeting of the Immanuel congregation was held on New Year's day. Sixteen voting members were in attendance. The treasurer, Geo. Henningson, rendered the annual report, which report was very favorable and encouraging, with progress in all departments. The result of election was as follows: deacon, (to fill vacancy caused by a member having moved away) Simon Frederiksen; deacon for three years, Frank Steffan, Jr.; treasurer, Geo. Henningson (re-elected); secretary, Rev. Heidtke; ushers, Edwin Magnuson and Harry Boeder.

We are glad to hear that Mrs. Edlund has recovered again sufficiently to be at home. We hope that the recommended rest will restore her to former strength and health.

Rev. Heidtke has been asked to serve the mission congregation at Hillman, 21 miles southeast from his home. It is the wish of the mission to have services every other Sunday during the winter months, and if possible every Sunday during the summer, with a forenoon service once a month, which latter wish was granted them by the Immanuel church here at the annual meeting.

Mrs. F. Steffan was in the Cities to visit with her daughter, Mrs. Plushow whose husband is in the hospital at the present time.

Various sicknesses have been making the rounds in this neighborhood since Christmas, measles, flu and chickenpox, and several schools have been closed on account of same.

Carry Brost, youngest sister of Mrs. Boeder made a surprise visit at her sister's place here; the surprise consisting in the fact that she no longer was Carry Brost but Mrs. Hanson as she was introduced Mr. Hanson as her husband. In short—the newlyweds were up here on their honeymoon trip. They will make their home at Emery, Wis. They were married January 3.

There will be no services at the Platte Lake church as the pastor will be in Hillman.

CONDUCT SEARCH FOR IRONTON MAN

"Pat" Johnson Was Last Seen Tuesday on His Way to Work

Authorities at Ironton were perplexed today over the disappearance of "Pat" Johnson, resident there, who was last seen Tuesday morning, January 15, on his way to work.

Mr. Johnson, who is 21 years old, was employed by the Inland Steel Co. He had started from his home, with his lunch kit, presumably for work, about 8 A. M. Tuesday. Since then no word has been received from him. His present whereabouts is unknown to his parents or the range police.

A rumor current today in the range towns to the effect that the body of the missing man had been found in a snow bank, the victim of foul play, was discredited by range officials who stated they had investigated the source of information and placed no credence in it.

The aid of the county sheriff's department and police departments throughout the state was sought today in an effort to locate Mr. Johnson.

The Legionnaires are making the trip by car. Six players are making the trip with Manager Lester Peterson. They are: Heikkinen, Nutting, Ladd, Whitlock, DeRoche and Marshall.

In spite of the heavy grind which the players will be subject to, Manager Peterson was confident today that his men would return to Brainerd with the majority of the games in the win column.

PURDUE HAS FIRM HOLD ON CAGE TITLE

HAVE FOUGHT THROUGH FIVE GAMES WITHOUT SINGLE DEFEAT

NO TEAM ABLE TO STOP THEIR RANGY CENTER "STRETCH" MURPHY

By BERT DEMBY (United Press Staff Correspondent) Chicago, Jan. 21.—(U.P.)—In undisputed possession of the western conference basketball lead for the first time this year, Purdue's Boilermakers tonight face what promises to be one of their hardest games.

The Boilermakers have fought their way through five games without defeat because no team has been able to stop "Stretch" Murphy, their rangy center.

But in playing Wisconsin tonight, Purdue meets the team which seems best qualified to halt Murphy.

In previous games, Murphy, because of his ability to get into the air has dominated the floor but the Badger team is plenty tall and the Purdue center will find it difficult to work over their heads.

Purdue stepped into the conference lead Saturday night by defeating Indiana 29-23, while Michigan, which has won four and lost none, was idle.

In the other game tonight Minnesota Hoosiers have shown great improvement since their early season one-point victory over the Gophers and are favored.

Chicago meets Ohio State Saturday in the only other conference game to be played this week. Ohio should better its five hundred standing in the averages, although Chicago showed good form in defeating Illinois by 22 to 19 last Saturday.

Northwestern meets Notre Dame Saturday in a non-conference affair. The Purple seemed to have found itself in defeating Iowa 28 to 27 last week.

In the other game last Saturday, Wisconsin won from Minnesota 39-17. The Badgers now have won four and lost only one game and are entertaining championship hopes.

They have a smooth working offense which is good for many short shots and if they upset Purdue tonight must be looked upon as possible champions.

C. C. PYLE TO CHART 'BUNION DERB' OF 1929

New York, Jan. 21.—(U.P.)—C. C. Pyle set out in his land cruiser today to chart the course for the "Bunion Derby" of 1929, which is to proceed from New York City to Los Angeles, starting March 31. Despite the financial losses of the 1928 venture, the promoter bubbled over with his never-failing optimism, as he announced that he had secured training quarters for his athletes at Rockaway Park, Long Island, where training for the long trek will start March 11.

Pyle said he expected 250 entries, despite the fact that he has raised the entrance fee from $25 to $300. He is offering $60,000 in prizes.

The land cruise to the far coast will take about four weeks.

SHARKEY MEETS K. O. CHRISTNER FRIDAY NIGHT

LATTER IS A REFORMED RUBBER PUDDLER FROM AKRON, OHIO

CHRISTNER RECENTLY KNOCKED OUT KNUTE HANSEN, THE DANE

By FRANK GETTY (United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Jan. 21.—The fate of the proposed heavyweight elimination bout between Jack Sharkey of Boston and Young Stribling of Georgia rests in no small measure upon the ham-like right hand of K. O. Christner, a reformed rubber puddler from Akron, Ohio.

On Friday night, Christner meets Sharkey in what is known as a "tune-up" bout for the loquacious Lithuanian. While the flistic experts do not concede such a possibility, the Akron heavyweight is in a position to create considerable discord in the tune-up process by dealing Sharkey an emphatic slap upon the whiskers.

Such a slap, when dealt by the former tire-pit worker, has been known to flatten heavyweights of Sharkey's latitude and longitude — Knute Hansen among others. The blow with which Christner tacked Hansen to the canvas out in Ohio was felt in New York, where several financiers had pooled their market profits to back the Dane as the coming heavyweight champion.

It is safe to say that a similar blow to Sharkey's chin would be heard in the most remote regions of Florida. Christner can deliver a knockout punch under the proper circumstances. Whether such circumstances will exist at Madison Square Garden Friday night remains to be seen.

In the event that he upsets the best laid plans for the $500,000 venture by disposing of one of its two proposed principals, the former rubber puddler will be offered the position of alternate against Young Stribling, who apparently does not care whom he fights.

RETURN GAME IS BOOKED AT CROSBY ON NEXT SUNDAY

The Brainerd hockey team got away to a flying start in their first game of the season yesterday by defeating the Range six, by the score of 5 to 1.

The game was played on the rink to the rear of the court house and was witnessed by a large gallery. The range team showed good combination work but failed in teaming up to score at the net.

Rafidal and Gabiou made a stone-wall defense which proved a tartar to the visitors' attack.

Fox, Brainerd goalie, played a heady game, keeping his goal free from the visitors' attacks until he was injured in the second period and was replaced by Macintosh who held the visitors to one lone tally.

Flaata and Creger with their hard driving attack accounted for the five points for the home team, Flaata, 3 and Creger 2.

The stars for the range team were Blom, who kept the Brainerd boys on their toes, and Johnson who made the lone tally for his team. Radosovich also played a good game at goal. Next Sunday afternoon the Brainerd team will play a return game at Crosby.
